

1 Jennifer A. Reisch (CA Bar No. 223671)

2 Equal Rights Advocates

3 1170 Market Street, Suite 700

4 San Francisco, CA 94102

5 Ph: (415) 896-0672

6 Fax: (415) 231-0011

7 Emails: jreish@equalrightsadvocates.org

8 Javier M. Guzman*

9 Skye L. Perryman*

10 Robin Thurston*

11 Karianne Jones*

12 Democracy Forward Foundation

13 1333 H St. NW

14 Washington, DC 20005

15 Ph: (202) 448-9090

16 Fax: (202) 701-1775

17 Emails: jguzman@democracyforward.org, sperryman@democracyforward.org,

18 rthurston@democracyforward.org, kjones@democracyforward.org

19 Leecia Welch (CA Bar No. 208741)

20 Alice Y. Abrokwa*

21 National Center for Youth Law

22 405 14th Street, 15th Floor

23 Oakland, CA 94612, and

24 1313 L Street, NW, Suite 130

25 Washington, DC 20005

26 Ph: (510) 835-8098

27 Fax: (510) 835-8099

28 Emails: lwelch@youthlaw.org, aabrokwa@youthlaw.org

Emily Martin*

Neena Chaudhry*

Sunu Chandy*

Alexandra Brodsky*

National Women's Law Center

11 Dupont Circle, NW, Suite 800

Washington, DC 20036

Ph: (202) 588-5180

Fax: (202) 588-5185

Emails: emartin@nwlc.org, nchaudhry@nwlc.org, schandy@nwlc.org, abrodsky@nwlc.org

pro hac vice motions filed or forthcoming*

Counsel for Plaintiffs

1 UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
2 NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
3 SAN FRANCISCO DIVISION

3 SURVJUSTICE, INC.,)
4 1015 15th Street NW, Suite 632)
5 Washington, DC 20005,)

6 EQUAL RIGHTS ADVOCATES)
7 1170 Market Street, Suite 700)
8 San Francisco, CA 94102,)

9 VICTIM RIGHTS LAW CENTER)
10 520 SW Yamhill Street)
11 Portland, OR 97204,)

12 Plaintiffs,)

13 v.)

14 ELISABETH D. DEVOS, in her official)
15 capacity as Secretary of Education,)
16 400 Maryland Avenue SW)
17 Washington, DC 20202,)

18 CANDICE JACKSON, in her official) 19 capacity as Acting Assistant Secretary for) 20 Civil Rights,)
21 400 Maryland Avenue SW)
22 Washington, DC 20202,)

23 U.S. DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,)
24 400 Maryland Avenue SW)
25 Washington, DC 20202,)

26 Defendants.)
27) 28)

Case Number: 3:18-cv-00535-JSC

AMENDED COMPLAINT FOR INJUNCTIVE RELIEF

DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL

1. Plaintiffs SurvJustice, Inc., Equal Rights Advocates, and Victim Rights Law Center bring this action against Defendants U.S. Department of Education (“the Department” or “the agency”), Secretary Elisabeth DeVos, and Acting Assistant Secretary for Civil Rights Candice Jackson seeking vacatur of the Department’s new policy, as expressed in a Dear Colleague Letter

1 and Question and Answers guidance issued on September 22, 2017 (hereinafter jointly referred
2 to as the “2017 Title IX policy”), concerning Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972
3 (“Title IX”).

4 2. Over 45 years ago, Congress enacted Title IX to prohibit discrimination on the basis of 5 sex in educational programs and activities receiving federal financial assistance (hereinafter
6 “recipients” or “educational institutions”). This landmark civil rights law has helped fight sex 7 discrimination and promote equal educational access and opportunities for girls and women from 8 the classroom to the playing field.

9 3. Twenty years ago, acting on the basis of Supreme Court decisions and the recognition
10 that Title IX’s promise of equality is hollow if a student can be subjected to sexual harassment
11 with impunity, the Department issued its first guidance to educational institutions (both K-12 12 schools and institutions of higher education) on the standards that govern their response to sexual 13 harassment, a form of sex discrimination. Since then, through several successive guidance
14 materials issued under Administrations led by both political parties, the Department has 15 reaffirmed that Title IX’s prohibition on sex discrimination requires recipients to prevent and 16 redress sex and gender-based harassment. These policies recognize that students who experience
17 sexual harassment, including in its most extreme form, sexual violence, suffer not only 18 physically and emotionally, but also in their ability to participate in and benefit from educational 19 opportunities, on the basis of their sex.

20 4. The reaffirmation of Title IX’s protections continued until September 2017, when the 21 Department formally rescinded sexual violence guidance documents issued in 2011 and 2014—
22 purportedly because they were issued without notice and comment—and issued new conflicting
23
24
25
26
27
28

1 policy documents to educational institutions—without notice and comment.¹ The 2017 Title IX
2 policy is substantively unlawful and procedurally deficient. It conflicts with existing Title IX
3 requirements and fails to provide a reasoned justification for its reversal in position. It is also 4 based on a legally and factually mistaken view that earlier guidance limited due process
5 protections for students. And in issuing the 2017 Title IX policy, the Department failed to take 6 into account reliance interests that students, and organizations like Plaintiffs that work with 7 students, have in the protections set out in prior guidance documents.

9 5. The 2017 Title IX policy imposes significant changes on educational institutions and on 10 students. For example, whereas before, educational institutions were permitted to offer interim 11 measures, such as a revised class schedule or new housing assignment, to a student who had 12 complained of sexual harassment, now they are prohibited from issuing interim measures in a
13 manner that minimizes the burden for those students. The 2017 Title IX policy also relaxes
14 protections for sexual harassment victims, such as by permitting mediation between the parties, 15 even in cases of alleged sexual assault.

17 6. Underlying these changes and reversals are unfounded generalizations about women and 18 girls, particularly their credibility regarding reported experiences of sexual harassment, including 19 sexual violence. Myriad statements and actions by the Department's leadership reveal this 20 discriminatory viewpoint. Thus, not only does the Department's 2017 Title IX policy fail to meet
21 the reasoned decision and other requirements of the Administrative Procedure Act, it also 22 violates the Fifth Amendment's equal protection guarantee. Plaintiffs therefore respectfully
23 request that the 2017 Title IX policy be vacated.

25 ¹ See U.S. Dep't of Educ., Ltr. from Ass't Sec'y Candice Jackson (Sept. 22, 2017),
26 <https://www2.ed.gov/about/offices/list/ocr/letters/colleague-title-ix-201709.pdf> ("2017 Dear
27 Colleague Letter"); U.S. Dep't of Educ., Q&A on Campus Sexual Misconduct (Sept. 22, 2017), 28 <https://www2.ed.gov/about/offices/list/ocr/docs/qa-title-ix-201709.pdf> ("2017 Q&A").

1 Jurisdiction and Venue

2 7. This Court has jurisdiction over this action pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1331.

3 8. Venue is proper under 28 U.S.C. § 1391(e) because Equal Rights Advocates, a plaintiff,
4 resides in San Francisco, California.
5

6 Intradistrict Assignment

7 9. Filing is proper in this Judicial District because Equal Rights Advocates, a plaintiff, is 8 located in San Francisco, California.
9

10 Parties

11 10. Plaintiff SurvJustice, Inc., (“SurvJustice”) is a national not-for-profit organization based 12 in Washington, D.C., founded in 2014. SurvJustice’s mission is to increase the prospect of 13 justice for survivors of sexual violence. It pursues this goal through legal assistance, policy 14 advocacy, and institutional training. Through its efforts, SurvJustice aims to decrease the 15 prevalence of sexual violence throughout the country.
16

17 11. SurvJustice provides legal assistance to survivors of sexual violence in campus
18 proceedings, as well as civil and criminal legal systems. The majority of requests for legal 19 assistance that SurvJustice receives are from students at institutions of higher education.
20 SurvJustice staff help sexual violence survivors navigate the campus grievance process,
21 including reporting the violence, assisting survivors throughout any investigation, advising
22 survivors in campus hearings, helping survivors with any appeals, and helping survivors access 23 accommodations and services from their educational institutions. They frequently serve as 24 “advisors of choice” for college students in institutional disciplinary actions for cases of alleged 25 domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, or stalking, as provided for by the Clery Act
26
27
28

1 as amended by the 2013 Violence Against Women Reauthorization Act, 20 U.S.C. §
2 1092(f)(8)(B)(iv)(II) (“Clery Act”). SurvJustice staff also represent survivors in civil litigation or 3 refer survivors to other qualified lawyers for such representation. SurvJustice also assists
4 survivors in reporting crimes to law enforcement, in advocating for prosecution, and by serving
5 as media representatives for victims and their families in high-profile criminal cases.
6

7 12. SurvJustice also trains educational institutions to prevent and address sexual violence
8 through compliance with federal law, enforcement of victims’ rights, and adoption of best 9 practices that include development of a culture that supports survivors and encourages “sexual 10 respect” (i.e., respect in sexual interactions and relationships). As part of this work, SurvJustice
11 has provided the annual training required by the Clery Act to various campus officials across the 12 country who investigate and adjudicate complaints of sexual assault, dating violence, domestic 13 violence, and stalking.
14

15 13. SurvJustice also engages in policy advocacy by providing technical assistance and advice
16 to legislators and policymakers on various state and federal legislation and policy efforts 17 regarding sexual violence, and working with changemakers within their communities on local 18 policy efforts, especially on college and university campuses.
19

20 14. SurvJustice brings this action on its own behalf because the challenged 2017 Title IX 21 policy (i) requires resource-intensive efforts that impede its daily operations; (ii) limits the 22 efficacy of available avenues of redress; (iii) increases the costs it bears in its work on behalf of 23 sexual violence survivors—for example by causing it to waive intake fees and reduce or waive
24 speaking fees; and (iv) otherwise directly conflicts with, impairs, and frustrates SurvJustice’s
25 organizational mission and priorities.
26
27
28

1 15. As an organization that provides direct assistance and referral services to survivors of 2 sexual violence, SurvJustice's core mission and daily operations have been and will continue to
3 be impeded by the chilling effect that the 2017 Title IX policy has had and continues to have on 4 the reporting of sexual violence.

5 16. Following and as a result of the 2017 Title IX policy change, SurvJustice experienced a
6 decrease in the number of sexual violence survivors seeking its services. This trend is borne out
7 by SurvJustice's interactions with particular college and university students who have questioned
8 whether they should continue with their plans to report sexual violence given the uncertainty 9 regarding their legal protections and an anticipated lowered likelihood of success created by the 10 policy change.

11 17. Following the 2017 Title IX policy change and as a result of the change, SurvJustice has 12 provided an increased number of student rights trainings at college and university campuses.
13 These additional trainings are necessary to respond to confusion created by the 2017 Title IX
14 policy among students about their legal rights. SurvJustice has also significantly reduced its price
15 for doing these trainings or agreed to provide them pro bono in response to increased need
16 resulting from the widespread uncertainty among students regarding their legal protections
17 following the 2017 Title IX policy change.

18 18. SurvJustice has also had to devote significant staff time to reviewing and understanding
19 the 2017 Title IX policy in order to advise clients in ongoing campus investigations and advocate
20 on their behalf. This shift in use of time has decreased the amount of time that SurvJustice has 21 available to provide legal services, including work on ongoing civil litigation.

22 19. The 2017 Title IX policy makes it more difficult for SurvJustice to accomplish its 23 mission of obtaining justice for survivors of sexual violence, both because it makes beneficial
24
25
26
27
28

1 outcomes less likely for survivors and because even where those outcomes are still available,
2 success will take more staff time and effort.

3 20. For example, SurvJustice often advocates for schools to provide accommodations to its 4 clients, including during the pendency of an investigation, so that they can continue to learn
5 safely. SurvJustice often requests unilateral no-contact orders on its clients' behalf but has
6 opposed mutual no-contact orders because they tend to be retaliatory.² Yet the agency's Title IX
7 policy change requires no-contact orders to be mutual, by prohibiting a school from making
8 interim measures available to only one party. The 2017 Title IX policy therefore impedes
9 SurvJustice's mission by making it more difficult for SurvJustice to obtain interim measures that 10 are appropriate for survivors of sexual harassment, and ensure ongoing access to education for its 11 clients in accordance with its mission.
12

13 21. In addition, since the 2017 Title IX policy no longer identifies any benchmarks to 14 determine whether colleges and universities are meeting their obligation to resolve reports of 15 sexual violence in a timely fashion, SurvJustice has observed a trend in educational institutions
16 not responding at all, or not responding as promptly, to its clients' complaints. This trend has 17 required SurvJustice to spend additional staff time and resources that it has not had to spend in 18 the past attempting to get school officials to respond to a survivor's complaint of sexual violence.
19

20 22. The agency's 2017 Title IX policy also makes it more difficult for SurvJustice to obtain
21 beneficial results for its clients due to, among other particulars, its endorsement of one-sided
22

23
24
25

² SurvJustice argues that mutual no-contact orders are forms of retaliation when there is no basis
26 to place the order against victim-complainants other than the fact that they made a Title IX
27 complaint. In such instances, schools limit victims' access to educational opportunities and 28 benefits as a direct result of the victims' assertion of their federal rights and utilization of the Title IX grievance process.

1 appeal rights and a heightened standard of evidence that disfavors survivors and makes findings
2 of responsibility for sexual misconduct more onerous.

3 23. Plaintiff Equal Rights Advocates (“ERA”) is a national non-profit civil rights
4 organization based in San Francisco, California. Founded in 1974, ERA is dedicated to 5 protecting and expanding economic educational access and opportunities for women and girls.
6

7 24. ERA furthers its mission through engaging in public education efforts, as well as policy
8 reform and legislative advocacy; providing free legal information and counseling; and litigating 9 cases involving issues of gender discrimination in employment and education at all stages, from 10 the administrative agency process through and including the United States Supreme Court. ERA 11 has a long history of pursuing gender justice and equal opportunity for women and girls in 12 education and has litigated a number of important precedent-setting cases under Title IX, 13 including Doe v. Petaluma City School District, 54 F.3d 1447 (9th Cir. 1995), which held for the 14 first time that a school can be sued for sex discrimination under that law when it fails to address
15 one student’s serious harassment of another. ERA has participated as amicus curiae in scores of 16 state and federal cases involving the interpretation and application of procedural rules and civil 17 rights laws that have an impact on access to justice and economic opportunity for women and 18 girls. Through its Advice and Counseling program, ERA also provides free information and 19 assists individuals on matters relating to sex and gender discrimination at work and in school. As 20 part of its mission, ERA counsels and represents women who have been victims of sexual 21 harassment and/or sexual assault in matters pursuant to Title IX.
22
23

24 25. ERA brings this action on its own behalf because the challenged 2017 Title IX policy (i)
25 requires resource-intensive efforts that divert resources from its daily operations; (ii) limits the 26 efficacy of available avenues of redress to ERA’s clients and others it serves, (iii) increases the 27
28

1 costs ERA bears in its work on behalf of student survivors of sexual violence; and (iv) otherwise
2 directly conflicts with, impairs, and frustrates ERA's organizational mission and programmatic 3 priorities.

4 26. ERA has had to expend resources over and above what it would otherwise have expended
5 in order to counteract the effects of the 2017 Title IX policy change. For example, to counteract
6 the effects of the Title IX policy change, ERA has had to divert staff time and resources away
7 from core programmatic activities, such as litigating employment-related civil rights
8 enforcement cases and cases involving Title IX enforcement that do not relate to sexual violence
9 in schools, in order to step up its efforts to assist victims of sexual harassment and assault in 10 educational settings obtain redress. In particular, ERA has launched a national initiative to End
11 Sexual Violence in Education ("ESVE") to narrow a justice gap for survivors of sexual violence
12 that is expanding rapidly given the unlawful actions Defendants have taken. Through the ESVE
13 Initiative, which was launched as a result of the Department's 2017 Title IX policy change, ERA
14 is expanding its Advice & Counseling program, re-designing its intake process, and developing 15 new resources to better reach and serve individuals facing sexual harassment and violence in 16 schools. Additionally, as part of ESVE and in order to counteract the negative impact of policy
17 changes and rollbacks at the federal level on ERA's clients and the communities it serves, ERA
18 is expending resources and diverting resources away from core programmatic activities to 19 establish a network of attorneys to provide pro bono counseling and other assistance to victims
20 of sexual harassment and assault in schools. It also is planning to build a new website where 21 advocates for survivors can find and share resources with each other.

22 27. Moreover, as an organization that has a longstanding history of providing direct 23 assistance and referral services to survivors of sexual violence, ERA is hampered in its ability to 24

1 assist the victims of sexual harassment and assault that it represents and counsels in obtaining
2 equitable outcomes and redress for the harms they have suffered. In particular, and as discussed
3 more fully below, the 2017 Title IX policy change permits schools to offer asymmetric appellate
4 rights that disadvantage victims of sexual harassment, including sexual assault; permits schools
5 to evade responsibility for protecting students and the school community as a whole by resolving 6 claims of sexual assault privately through mediation; and rolls back other critical protections for 7 survivors that inhibit ERA's ability to obtain redress and achieve results for its clients.
8

9 28. Plaintiff Victim Rights Law Center ("VRLC") is a non-profit organization with 10 locations in Oregon and Massachusetts dedicated solely to serving the legal needs of rape and 11 sexual assault victims. VRLC's mission is to provide legal representation to victims of rape and 12 sexual assault to help rebuild their lives and to promote a national movement committed to 13 seeking justice for every rape and sexual assault victim.
14

15 29. VRLC provides legal free, comprehensive services to help restore victims' lives after 16 experiencing sexual violence, ensuring that survivors may stay in school; protecting their 17 privileged and confidential mental health, medical, and education records; preserving their 18 employment; maintaining safe housing; securing their immigration status; and swiftly accessing 19 victim compensation and other benefits. As part of its work, VRLC provides legal services 20 and/or facilitates the provision of legal services to individuals who have experienced sexual 21 violence and/or assault on elementary, secondary, and higher education campuses. With almost 22 50 percent of VRLC's clients under the age of 24, a substantial portion of its practice is 23 providing education-related legal consultation and representation. VRLC attorneys represent 24 campus victims to communicate effectively with campus administrators, acquire interim
25 measures and accommodations to secure their education, prepare and attend disciplinary 26
27
28

1 hearings, file appeals, and, if necessary, file complaints with the Department of Education,
2 Office of Civil Rights (“OCR”).

3 30. VRLC brings this action on its own behalf because, as detailed below, the challenged
4 Title IX policy concretely frustrates its mission and purpose through (among other things) (i)
5 requiring resource-intensive efforts that impede its daily operations, (ii) impairing its mission of 6 providing legal assistance to survivors of sexual assault and/or violence, (iii) limiting the efficacy
7 of available avenues of redress for the population it seeks to serve, (iv) requiring that resources
8 be diverted in order to combat the harmful effects of the Title IX policy, and (v) otherwise
9 directly conflicts with, impairs, and frustrates VRLC’s organizational mission and priorities.

10
11 31. The new 2017 Title IX policy has been devastating to VRLC’s mission and its 12 operational activities. For example, as result of the 2017 Title IX policy, sexual violence and 13 assault victims have expressed an unwillingness to report harassment and assault to campus
14 authorities, denying VRLC the ability to achieve its mission. VRLC saw an immediate chilling
15 effect after the Department issued its 2017 Dear Colleague letter and new Title IX policy. VRLC
16 has seen a decline in the number of sexual violence and assault survivors willing to pursue
17 justice through campus processes. The 2017 Title IX policy makes it less likely for VRLC
18 clients to engage in the campus process due to, among other particulars, its endorsement of one-19 sided appeal rights and a heightened standard of evidence that disfavors survivors and makes 20 findings of responsibility for sexual assault and violence more onerous. Moreover, as a result of 21 the new Title IX policy, there has been a decline in the number of survivors willing to file
22 complaints with the Department of Education and/or otherwise communicating with the 23 Department of Education where there is already an investigation pending. Such declines in 24 reporting and hesitance to participate in the grievance process either through educational 25
26
27
28

1 institutions or at the Department of Education directly threaten and frustrate VRLC's mission
2 and purpose.

3 32. In addition to chilling and discouraging sexual violence and assault victims from availing
4 themselves of campus processes, the new Title IX policy has made it difficult for VRLC to 5 provide appropriate legal advice that helps its clients weigh their options with the best
6 information, leading to further reductions in reports of sexual violence and assault.

7
8 33. In cases where a survivor or victim may proceed with a claim (which is rare under the 9 new Title IX policy), VRLC's mission remains frustrated given the nature of the Title IX policy.
10 In particular, the 2017 Title IX policy makes it more difficult for VRLC to accomplish its 11 mission of obtaining justice for survivors of sexual violence, both because it makes beneficial
12 outcomes less likely for survivors and because even where those outcomes are still available,
13 success will take more staff time and effort. In addition, since the 2017 Title IX policy no longer
14 requires colleges and universities to resolve reports of sexual violence in a timely fashion, VRLC
15 has observed a trend in educational institutions not responding or not responding as promptly to 16 its clients' complaints. This trend has required VRLC to spend additional staff time and 17 resources that it has not had to spend in the past attempting to get school officials to respond.

18
19 34. VRLC has also had to devote staff time to reviewing and understanding the 2017 Title IX
20 policy in order to advise clients in ongoing campus investigations and advocate on their behalf.
21 This use of time has decreased the amount of time that it has available to provide legal services,
22 including work on ongoing civil litigation.

23
24 35. Defendant U.S. Department of Education ("the Department" or "the agency") is a 25 federal agency headquartered in Washington, D.C. As discussed more fully below, the 26 Department implements Title IX through issuing regulations and guidance documents and is also 27
28

1 tasked with administrative enforcement of Title IX, 20 U.S.C. § 1682. As a federal agency, the
2 Department is subject to the requirements of the Administrative Procedure Act and the United 3 States Constitution.

4 36. Defendant Elisabeth D. DeVos is the United States Secretary of Education. She is sued
5 in her official capacity.

6
7 37. Defendant Candice Jackson is the Acting Assistant Secretary for Civil Rights and 8 Deputy Assistant Secretary for Strategic Operations and Outreach for the Department. She is 9 sued in her official capacity.

10 Background

11
12 38. Sexual harassment, which is conduct, including but not limited to unwelcome sexual 13 advances, requests for sexual favors, and other unwelcome verbal, nonverbal, or physical 14 conduct of a sexual nature that targets someone because of their sex, including sexual assault or 15 other sexual violence (hereinafter “sexual harassment” or “sexual harassment, including sexual 16 violence”), is widespread in schools across the country, particularly in institutions of higher 17 education.

18
19 39. Sexual harassment disproportionately impacts women and girls. One in five women and 20 one in fourteen men experience sexual assault while in college.³ As the last Administration’s 21 Task Force to Protect Students from Sexual Assault concluded: “For female bisexual and 22

23 ³ The White House, The Second Report of the White House Task Force to Protect Students from 24 Sexual Assault, 9 (Jan. 5, 2017), [https://obamawhitehouse.archives.gov/sites/obamawhitehouse.
25 archives.gov/files/images/Documents/1.4.17.VAW%20Event.TF%20Report.PDF](https://obamawhitehouse.archives.gov/sites/obamawhitehouse.archives.gov/files/images/Documents/1.4.17.VAW%20Event.TF%20Report.PDF). Similarly, a
26 2007 report by the National Criminal Justice Service found that one in five women were victims 27 of sexual assault while in college and that approximately 6.1 percent of men were victims of 28 completed or attempted sexual assault during college. In high schools, during the 2007-2008 school year, there were 800 reported incidents of rape or attempted rape and 2,800 reported incidents of other sexual batteries.

1 transgender students, victimization rates are even higher: More than 1 in 4 transgender students
2 and more than 1 in 3 of bisexual students experience sexual assault while in college.”⁴

3 40. While sexual harassment on college campuses is more widely known, students of all ages
4 face sexual harassment, including sexual assault. A nationally representative survey of students
5 in grades 7-12 in 2011 concluded that nearly half of the students surveyed experienced some 6 form of sexual harassment that school year, and the majority said that the experience had a
7 negative effect on them.⁵ Of these students, “[g]irls were more likely than boys to be sexually
8 harassed, by a significant margin.”⁶ Children who experience sexual violence are nearly 14 times 9 more likely to experience rape or attempted rape in their first year of college, according to the 10 National Center for Victims of Crime.⁷

11
12 41. Experiences of sexual violence harm students physically, psychologically, and 13 academically. Research shows that the effects of sexual assault in high school has consequences
14 that are “delayed and long lasting.”⁸ Sexually victimized students are more likely to drop classes, 15
16
17
18

19 ⁴ Id.

20 ⁵ Catherine Hill and Holly Kearl, Crossing The Line, Sexual Harassment at School, American
21 Association of University Women, 2 (2011), <https://www.aauw.org/files/2013/02/Crossing-the-Line-Sexual-Harassment-at-School.pdf>.

22 ⁶ Id.

23 ⁷ Mark Keierleber, The Younger Victims of Sexual Violence in School, The Atlantic, Aug. 10, 24 2017, <https://www.theatlantic.com/education/archive/2017/08/the-younger-victims-of-sexual-violence-in-school/536418/>.

25 ⁸ Dana Bolger, Gender Violence Costs: School’s Financial Obligations Under Title IX, 125, Yale
26 L.J. 2106, 2118 (2016), https://www.yalelawjournal.org/feature/gender-violence-costs-schools-financial-obligations-under-title-ix#_ftnref72 (“Violence—and institutional indifference in its 27 wake—changes the courses of survivors’ lives, with educational and employment consequences 28 following them far into the future.”).

1 change residences, and have lower GPAs, creating long-term consequences for professional
2 success and earning potential.⁹

3 42. Incidents of sexual harassment, including sexual violence, are often underreported,
4 especially on college campuses. For example, the Campus Climate Survey Validation Study
5 found that only 7 percent of students who indicated that they had been raped reported the rape to 6 school authorities.¹⁰

7
8 43. If unreported or inappropriately addressed, sexual harassment can continue unchecked
9 and create ongoing hostile environments for those who are the targets of such attacks.

10
11 Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972

12 44. Signed into law by President Nixon, Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, 20
13 U.S.C. § 1681, prohibits discrimination on the basis of sex in any federally funded education
14 program or activity. When a recipient institution fails to comply with Title IX or to take action to 15 remedy its non-compliance, it can be subject to a range of enforcement actions, including the 16 loss of federal financial assistance. 20 U.S.C. § 1682.

17
18 45. The Supreme Court has squarely held that sexual harassment, which includes sexual 19 violence, is a form of sex discrimination that Title IX requires schools to address and 20 remediate.¹¹

21
22
23 ⁹ Victoria L. Banyard et al., Academic Correlates of Unwanted Sexual Contact, Intercourse, 24 Stalking, and Intimate Partner Violence: An Understudied but Important Consequence for 25 College Students, J. of Interpersonal Violence (June 21, 2017),
<http://journals.sagepub.com/doi/10.1177/0886260517715022>;

26 ¹⁰ The White House, supra note 3 at 10.

27 ¹¹ See, e.g., Franklin v. Gwinnett Cnty Public Schools, 503 U.S. 60, 75 (1992) (citing Meritor
28 Sav. Bank, FSB v. Vinson, 477 U.S. 57, 64 (1986); Davis v. Monroe Cnty. Bd. of Educ., 526 U.S.
629 (1999); Gebser v. Lago Vista Indep. Sch. Dist., 524 U.S. 274 (1998).

The Department of Education’s Implementation and Enforcement of Title IX

1
2 46. The U.S. Department of Education is the lead agency charged with enforcing Title IX. It
3 may do so by establishing rules, regulations, and procedures that implement Title IX and define
4 the ways in which educational institutions comply with Title IX’s requirements. See 20 U.S.C.
5 § 1682.

6
7 47. In 1975, the Department’s predecessor promulgated regulations to effectuate Title IX.
8 See 40 Fed. Reg. 24,128 (June 4, 1975). As amended, those regulations remain in effect today.
9 See 34 C.F.R. pt. 106. Among other things, the regulations incorporate Title IX’s 10 nondiscrimination mandate, see id. § 106.31(a), identify specific actions that constitute 11 discrimination, see id. § 106.31(b), and require assurances from recipients of federal financial 12 assistance that their programs and activities comply with regulatory requirements, see id.
13 § 106.4(a).

14
15 48. Recipients found to have discriminated on the basis of sex must “take such remedial
16 action as the Assistant Secretary [for Civil Rights] deems necessary to overcome the effects of 17 such discrimination.” Id. § 106.3(a).

18 49. The regulations require that recipients “adopt and publish grievance procedures providing 19 for prompt and equitable resolution” of student and employee complaints of sexual 20 discrimination, including sexual assault and other forms of sexual harassment. Id. § 106.8(b).
21 Such grievance procedures are designed to facilitate the reporting and resolution of complaints of 22 such sex discrimination so as to prevent and remedy hostile environments on campus.

23
24 50. These same regulations require that educational institutions “designate at least one
25 employee”—commonly known as a Title IX coordinator—“to coordinate its efforts to comply 26 with and carry out its responsibilities” under Title IX, including any investigation of any 27
28

1 complaint of sexual discrimination, including sexual violence and other forms of sexual
2 harassment. Id. § 106.8(a).

3 51. In addition to promulgating Title IX’s implementing regulations, the Department has 4 issued a series of guidance documents that explain the obligations recipient schools and 5 universities are required to take under Title IX.
6

7 The 1997 Sexual Harassment Guidance

8 52. The first of such guidance documents addressing educational institutions’ obligations to 9 address sexual harassment, titled Sexual Harassment Guidance: Harassment of Students by 10 School Employees, Other Students, or Third Parties, was published in 1997 after a public notice
11 and comment period and “extensive consultation with interested parties, [including] students,
12 teachers, school administrators, and researchers.” See 61 Fed. Reg. 42,728 (Aug. 16, 1996), 61
13 Fed. Reg. 52,172 (Oct. 4, 1996), and 62 Fed. Reg. 12,034, 12,035 (Mar. 13, 1997) (“1997 14 Guidance”). The 1997 Guidance provided information regarding the standards used by the 15 Department’s Office for Civil Rights (“OCR”) to investigate student complaints regarding 16 educational institutions’ responses to sexual harassment perpetrated by school employees, other 17 students (peers), or third parties.
18

19 53. The 1997 Guidance set forth principles for how educational institutions should address
20 sexual harassment in the educational setting. It noted that schools “are required by the Title IX
21 regulations to adopt and publish grievance procedures providing for prompt and equitable 22 resolution of sex discrimination complaints, including complaints of sexual harassment, and to 23 disseminate a policy against sex discrimination.” Id. at 12,040.
24

25 54. With respect to “informal mechanisms” for resolving complaints, the 1997 Guidance 26 explained that they may be used by mutual consent of the parties but that it was inappropriate for 27
28

1 a complaining student to be required to work out the problem directly with the individual
2 accused of harassment and that mediation would be inappropriate even on a voluntary basis in 3 cases that involve sexual assault. Id. at 12,045.

4 55. The 1997 Guidance further explained that, during an investigation of a complaint, a
5 school may take appropriate interim and remedial measures, such as placing the involved
6 students in separate classes or in different housing arrangements. The touchstone for these 7 measures was that they “be designed to minimize, as much as possible, the burden on the student
8 who was harassed.” Id. at 12,043.

9 56. The 1997 Guidance also made clear that, beyond temporary interim accommodations, a 10 school “may be required to provide . . . services to the student who was harassed if necessary to 11 address the effects of the harassment on that student.” Such service might include tutoring and 12 mental health counseling. Id.

13 57. The 1997 Guidance set forth factors that OCR would consider in evaluating whether a 14 school’s grievance procedures were “prompt and equitable,” noting that “many schools . . .
15 provide an opportunity to appeal the findings or remedy or both.” Id. at 12,044.

16 58. The 1997 Guidance explained that other legal or adjudicatory processes could not 17 substitute for a school’s own processes. For example, where possible criminal conduct was 18 involved, a police investigation “may be useful in terms of fact-gathering,” but, “because legal 19 standards for criminal conduct are different, police investigations or reports may not be 20 determinative of whether harassment occurred under Title IX and do not relieve the school of its 21 duty to respond promptly.” Id. at 12,045.
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

The 2001 Revised Sexual Harassment Guidance

1
2 59. Following the Supreme Court’s 1998 decision in Gebser v. Lago Vista Indep. Sch. Dist.,
3 524 U.S. 274 (1998) and its 1999 decision in Davis v. Monroe Cty. Bd. of Educ., 526 U.S. 629
4 (1999), the Department issued revisions to the 1997 Guidance in 2001, entitled Revised Sexual
5 Harassment Guidance: Harassment of Students by School Employees, Other Students, or Third
6 Parties. See 66 Fed. Reg. 5512 (Jan. 19, 2001).

7
8 60. The 2001 Guidance, which also followed a public notice and comment period, see 62
9 Fed. Reg. 66,092 (Nov. 2, 2000), reaffirms many of the principles set forth in the 1997
10 Guidance. It “explains how the requirements of the Title IX regulations apply to situations 11 involving sexual harassment of a student and outlines measures that schools should take to 12 ensure compliance [with Title IX and its implementing regulations].” 2001 Guidance at 4.

13
14 61. The 2001 Guidance reaffirms the requirement that educational institutions publish 15 grievance procedures “providing for prompt and equitable resolution of sex discrimination
16 complaints, including complaints of sexual harassment, and to disseminate a policy against sex
17 discrimination.” Id. at 14.

18
19 62. The 2001 Guidance further provides that “[o]nce a school has notice of possible sexual 20 harassment of students—whether carried out by employees, other students, or third parties—it
21 should take immediate and appropriate steps to investigate or otherwise determine what occurred
22 and take prompt and effective steps reasonably calculated to end any harassment, eliminate a 23 hostile environment if one has been created, and prevent harassment from occurring again.” Id.
24 at 15.

25
26 63. The 2001 Guidance specifies a number of factors that would be considered in 27 determining whether an educational institution’s grievance procedures were “prompt and 28

1 equitable,” as required by Title IX and the Department’s implementing regulations, including, as 2 in the 1997 Guidance, the acknowledgment that many schools “provid[ed] an opportunity to
3 appeal the findings or remedy or both.” Id. at 20.

4 64. The 2001 Guidance also reaffirms that although informal resolution of complaints might
5 be appropriate in some cases, OCR had “frequently advised schools” that “mediation” or other
6 informal resolution would not be appropriate in the context of some forms of sexual harassment,
7 such as sexual assault, even on a voluntary basis. Id. at 21.

8 65. The 2001 Guidance also reiterates the importance of interim measures discussed in the 9 1997 Guidance, stressing that such measures “should be designed to minimize, as much as 10 possible, the burden on the student who was harassed.” Id. at 16.

11 66. Like the 1997 Guidance, the 2001 Guidance made clear that, after an investigation has 12 concluded, a school “may be required to provide. . . services to the student who was harassed if 13 necessary to address the effects of the harassment on that student.” Id. at 16-17.

14 67. The 2001 Guidance cautions schools, as did the 1997 Guidance, about relying on police
15 or insurance company investigations as a substitute for their own processes, again emphasizing
16 the different purposes and legal standards applicable in those third-party investigations. Id. at 21.

17 68. Finally, the 2001 Guidance notes that both employees and students of public schools and 18 universities are entitled to certain Constitutional due process protections, and that the rights
19 established under Title IX must be interpreted consistent with any federally guaranteed due
20 process rights involved in a complaint proceeding. The guidance instructed, however, that 21 recipients should ensure that “steps to accord due process rights do not restrict or unnecessarily
22 delay the protections provided by Title IX to the complainant.” Id. at 22.
23
24
25
26
27
28

The 2011 Dear Colleague Letter and 2014 Q&A Document

69. Even with the Department’s enforcement and guidance activities, sexual harassment, including sexual violence, has remained a pervasive problem on campuses and in schools across the country.

70. In the wake of these ongoing challenges, educational institutions solicited assistance from the Department of Education in further understanding their obligations under Title IX in regard to sexual harassment, particularly sexual violence. Thereafter, in 2011, the Department issued a “Dear Colleague Letter on Sexual Violence” and, in 2014, a set of Questions and Answers to respond to additional concerns raised by schools and students.¹²

71. Citing the “deeply troubling” statistics concerning sexual violence on campuses, the 2011 Dear Colleague Letter provided clarity on how schools should address peer-on-peer sexual harassment, including sexual violence, as well as steps that schools could take to respond in accordance with the Department’s regulations and 2001 Guidance.

72. The 2011 Dear Colleague Letter reiterated, consistent with the 2001 Guidance, the importance of schools offering services to survivors, such as tutoring and mental health care, to ensure that they can continue to learn in the wake of sexual harassment, including sexual violence. 2011 Dear Colleague Letter at 15-17. It noted, again consistent with the 2001 Guidance, that necessary accommodations may include interim remedies to protect the complainant during the investigation. Id. at 15.

73. As in the 2001 Guidance, the 2011 Dear Colleague Letter discussed what constitutes a prompt and equitable adjudication. The 2011 Dear Colleague Letter also made clear that Title IX

¹² See U.S. Dep’t of Educ., Ltr. from Ass’t Sec’y Russlynn Ali (Apr. 4, 2011), <https://www2.ed.gov/about/offices/list/ocr/letters/colleague-201104.pdf> (“2011 Dear Colleague Letter”); U.S. Dep’t of Educ., Questions and Answers on Title IX and Sexual Violence (Apr. 29, 2014), <https://www2.ed.gov/about/offices/list/ocr/docs/qa-201404-title-ix.pdf> (“2014 Q&A”).

1 requires schools to provide complainants and respondents equal rights and opportunities
2 throughout an investigation and any appellate process. Id. at 12.

3 74. The 2011 Dear Colleague Letter also discouraged schools from allowing a complainant
4 and alleged perpetrator to directly cross-examine each other. As the guidance explained, 5 “[a]llowing an alleged perpetrator to question an alleged victim directly may be traumatic or 6 intimidating, thereby possibly escalating or perpetuating a hostile environment.” Id. at 12.

7 75. The 2011 Dear Colleague Letter reiterated the ongoing policy expressed in the 2001
8 Guidance that mediation is an inappropriate way to resolve complaints of sexual violence. Id. at 9 8.

10 76. The 2011 Dear Colleague Letter also discussed, in response to questions that school
11 administrators had posed, the burden of proof that recipient schools should use in investigating
12 complaints of sexual assault. The 2011 Dear Colleague Letter explained that, in investigating
13 Title IX complaints, OCR reviews a school’s grievance procedures to determine whether a 14 school uses preponderance of the evidence as the complainant’s burden of proof. It explained
15 that this burden appropriately reflected the burden used in litigation under Title VII of the Civil 16 Rights Act of 1964, to which courts have looked in construing Title IX, as well as the burden
17 used by OCR in investigating Title IX complaints against recipients of federal funding. Id. at 11.

18 77. Also consistent with the 2001 Guidance, the 2011 Dear Colleague Letter reiterated that 19 public and state-supported schools must provide due process protections to an alleged 20 perpetrator. Id. at 12.

21 78. In 2014, the Department issued further clarifications consistent with its previously issued
22 guidance in response to questions that it received from schools and colleges in the form of a 23 Questions and Answers document (“2014 Q&A”). The 2014 Q&A provided examples of 24
25
26
27
28

1 proactive efforts schools could take to prevent sexual violence and remedies schools could use to
2 end such conduct, prevent its recurrence, and address its effects.

3 79. Among other things, the 2014 Q&A further discussed Title IX’s mandate that schools
4 take steps to ensure equal access to educational programs and activities, including by protecting
5 a complainant with interim measures pending resolution of a complaint. Such measures should 6 allow the complainant to avoid contact with the alleged perpetrator and “to change academic and 7 extracurricular activities or his or her living, transportation, dining, and working situations as 8 appropriate.” 2014 Q&A at 32. This requirement is consistent with the 2001 Guidance’s
9 emphasis on Title IX’s mandate to take immediate steps once a complaint is filed to eliminate 10 any hostile environment and prevent harassment from occurring again. Id. at 32-33; see also 11 2001 Guidance at 12.

13 80. The 2014 Q&A also emphasized that schools should provide the same rights and 14 opportunities to complainants and respondents. 2014 Q&A at 26.

16 81. The 2011 Dear Colleague Letter and the 2014 Q&A were not the subject of a public 17 notice and comment process because they did not reflect any policy change, but rather reminded 18 schools of longstanding statutory and regulatory obligations to address sexual harassment,
19 including sexual violence, while providing more details and examples of how to do so. Both 20 documents were the product of the Department’s consideration of the standards that OCR had 21 relied on in dozens of investigations and reflected the input of students, faculty, administrators,
22 staff, attorneys, Sexual Assault Response Teams (“SARTs”), counselors, student advocates,
23 medical personnel, parents, law enforcement, prosecutors, and campus police.
24
25
26
27
28

The Trump Administration’s Change in Title IX Policy

82. Following his inauguration, President Trump appointed Secretary DeVos to lead the Department of Education. In April 2017, Secretary DeVos selected Candice Jackson to serve as Deputy Assistant Secretary and to lead OCR as Acting Assistant Secretary for Civil Rights.

83. Secretary DeVos and Ms. Jackson have repeatedly criticized the protections that Title IX affords to women and other survivors of sexual harassment, including sexual violence. Much of that criticism has been based on discriminatory stereotypes and unfounded generalizations about female college students in general and female victims of sexual violence in particular.

84. For example, Ms. Jackson has repeatedly criticized core civil rights achievements, such as legal protections against sexual harassment. For example, in a book she published in 2005, Ms. Jackson stated that laws to combat sexual harassment gloss over “the reality that unwanted sexual advances are difficult to define.”¹³

85. Ms. Jackson regularly questions the veracity of sexual harassment and assault claims made by women, stating, for example:

[I]t wasn’t enough that women are not legally forbidden anymore from getting an education and entering the workforce. Feminists and other leftists thought the problem of workplace sexual harassment needed a legal remedy. Since sexual harassment is such a nebulous experience, defined so subjectively and turning on the perceptions of the people involved, laws banning it are difficult to articulate. But they have tried anyway, with the side result that many men self-censor themselves to avoid being accused of sexual harassment, and institutions remove valid expressions of art and learning to avoid “even the appearance of sexual harassment.”¹⁴

86. In October 2016, a few months before joining the Department, Ms. Jackson stated in a social media post that women who claimed that Donald Trump sexually harassed them were

¹³ Candice Jackson, Their Lives: The Women Targeted by the Clinton Machine (2005), at 138.

¹⁴ Id.

1 “fake victims.”¹⁵ Ms. Jackson’s post came just days after a tape surfaced of President Trump
2 expressly bragging about sexually assaulting women.

3 87. Similarly, and for example, in the past, Secretary DeVos has provided substantial
4 financial contributions—a form of speech—to FIRE, an organization that advocates for schools
5 to abdicate their responsibility to address sexual violence and instead defer entirely to law
6 enforcement.¹⁶ It asserts that the 2011 Dear Colleague Letter “eviscerated due process rights of 7 students and faculty accused of sexual misconduct on campus.”¹⁷ FIRE has previously litigated
8 against the Department to weaken Title IX’s protections, including by arguing that the 9 preponderance of the evidence standard, which is used in nearly all civil matters, is unfair to the 10 alleged perpetrator in a Title IX grievance proceeding.

11
12 88. Since they have assumed their current roles at the Department, Secretary DeVos’s and 13 Ms. Jackson’s official actions and statements preceding the 2017 Title IX policy reveal their 14 discriminatory motivation.

15
16 89. For example, Secretary DeVos actively solicited the views of those individuals and 17 groups that oppose robust Title IX protections and have questioned the veracity of survivors’

18
19 ¹⁵ Annie Waldman, Pro Publica, DeVos Pick to Head Civil Rights Office Once Said She Faced
20 Discrimination for Being White (Apr. 14, 2017), https://www.propublica.org/article/devos-
candice-jackson-civil-rights-office-education-department.

21 ¹⁶ Benjamin Wermund, DeVos’ Donations Spark Questions About Her Stance On Sexual
22 Assault, Politico, Jan. 9, 2017, https://www.politico.com/story/2017/01/betsy-devos-education-
23 sexual-assault-233376, Alex Morey, Baylor Rape Controversy More Evidence Colleges
24 Unequipped to Decide Sexual Assault Cases, Found. for Individual Rights in Educ. (FIRE), Sept.
25 14, 2015, https://www.thefire.org/baylor-rape-controversy-more-evidence-colleges-unequipped-
26 to-decide-sexual-assault-cases/.; Robert Shibley, Time to Call the Cops: Title IX Has Failed
Campus Sexual Assault, TIME, Dec. 1, 2014, http://time.com/3612667/campus-sexual-assault-
27 iva-rape-titleix/ (FIRE’s senior vice president arguing that campus responses “encourage[]
28 silence or the avoidance of law enforcement” in the wake of the Rolling Stone account of alleged rape at a fraternity house at the University of Virginia).

¹⁷ https://www.thefire.org/dear-colleague-its-over-education-department-rescinds-controversial-
2011-letter/.

1 experiences. Shortly after assuming her role as Secretary, Secretary DeVos met with State
2 Representative Earl Ehrhart from Georgia—a notorious opponent of Title IX—to discuss, among 3 other topics, Title IX enforcement.¹⁸ Representative Ehrhart has pushed a state bill that would
4 require colleges to refer all sexual assault reports to the police, even against a victim’s expressed
5 wishes, a dangerous policy that would discourage reporting by victims. He has also questioned
6 women’s credibility on the experience of sexual assault accusing one woman of “utilizing a
7 victim’s status” for ulterior motives.¹⁹ Similarly, during the summer of 2017, Secretary DeVos
8 met with the National Coalition for Men, an organization that has published photos of women
9 who have made complaints of rape, calling them “false victims.”²⁰ This Coalition has referred to 10 rape survivors as “anti-male.”²¹

11
12 90. In contrast, only after repeated, collective requests from organizations representing the 13 interests of sexual harassment and assault survivors did Secretary DeVos agree to meet with 14 them. Plaintiffs, along with other organizations that advocate for Title IX’s protections for sexual 15 assault survivors, sent Secretary DeVos a letter in April 2017 urging her to consider the views of 16 sexual assault survivors and groups dedicated to their rights, as opposed to biased and extreme
17
18

19
20 ¹⁸ Kathryn Joyce, The Takedown of Title IX, N.Y. Times, Dec. 5, 2017, 21 https://www.nytimes.com/2017/12/05/magazine/the-takedown-of-title-ix.html?_r=0 (“Ehrhart
22 came away from his meeting gratified that DeVos seemed to agree with him on the limited role that federal authorities should play. ‘She’s placing this back where it belongs,’ he told me, ‘in the purview of the states.’”)

23 ¹⁹ Letter from Nat’l Women’s Law Ctr, et al. to Elisabeth DeVos, Sec’y of Educ., Apr. 17, 2017,
24 <https://nwlc.org/wp-content/uploads/2017/04/April-17-2017-Letter-to-Secretary-DeVos.pdf>.

25 ²⁰ Jessica Valenti, Why is Betsy DeVos enabling rape deniers?, The Guardian, July 14, 2017,
26 https://www.theguardian.com/commentisfree/2017/jul/14/betsy-devos-accused-rapists-meetings-
27 sexual-assault.

28 ²¹ Tyler Kingkade, These Democratic Senators Are Blasting Betsy DeVos For Her Approach To Campus Rape, BuzzFeed, July 12, 2017, https://www.buzzfeed.com/tylerkingkade/these-
democratic-senators-are-blasting-betsy-devos-for-her?utm_term=.sd2GyLb3M#.lvOz57wgB.

1 views, such as those held by Mr. Ehrhart.²² While Department decisionmakers did eventually
2 meet with SurvJustice and others representing the views of sexual violence survivors, one
3 survivors' rights group, Know Your IX, was disinvited after its co-founders published an op-ed
4 critical of the Office for Civil Rights.

5
6 91. Although Title IX affords protections to all victims of discriminatory conduct on the 7 basis of sex, Secretary DeVos and Ms. Jackson's statements have criticized the protections that 8 civil rights laws, such as Title IX, afford to women, continuing to base their statements on 9 stereotypes about college women and women who are survivors of sexual harassment, including 10 sexual assault.

11 92. In a July 2017 article in the New York Times, in which Ms. Jackson was quoted, she 12 publicly propounded discriminatory stereotypes of women who survive sexual assault.

13 Regarding investigations conducted by schools and universities to identify and remedy unlawful 14 sexual violence and other forms of harassment, she stated:
15

16
17 [In most investigations there's] not even an accusation that these accused students
18 overrode the will of a young woman. Rather, the accusations—90 percent of 19 them—fall into the category of 'we were both drunk,' 'we broke up, and six months later I found myself under a Title IX investigation because she just decided that our last sleeping together was not quite right.'²³

20 93. In September 2017, Secretary DeVos gave a speech on campus sexual harassment, 21 including sexual violence, at George Mason University. In her remarks, she cited a number of 22 examples where students, particularly male students accused of sexual violence, were allegedly 23 treated unfairly by their schools. She used these examples to justify rescinding the 2011 Dear
24

25 ²² Letter from Nat'l Women's Law Ctr, et al., supra note 19.

26 ²³ Erica L. Green & Sheryl Gay Stolberg, Policies Get a New Look as the Accused Get DeVos's
27 Ear, N.Y. Times, July 13, 2017 (emphasis added),
<https://www.nytimes.com/2017/07/12/us/politics/campus-rape-betsy-devos-title-iv-education-trump-candice-jackson.html>.

1 Colleague Letter and 2014 Q&A.²⁴ Yet these anecdotes involve problems that arose because 2 schools did not follow the then-existing guidance, and therefore do not support rescission of that
3 guidance. Moreover, many of the anecdotes used by Secretary DeVos in her speech were 4 misleading and/or untrue, in that they recounted supposed facts that the parties to the incident
5 disputed.

6
7 94. Secretary DeVos's September 2017 speech presented as equally problematic the harm
8 faced by sexual violence survivors and the harm faced by individuals who have been falsely
9 accused, despite a lack of evidence that the latter is a widespread problem extending beyond a
10 few occurrences, unlike the former.²⁵ Rather than recognizing that false accusations are rare,
11 Secretary DeVos presented the problem of false accusations as rampant. On the contrary,
12 research shows that the prevalence of false allegations of sexual assault is very low—false
13 accusations regarding criminal sexual assault, for example, are estimated at 2-10 percent.²⁶

14
15 95. Secretary DeVos also asserted that the loss of due process protections for alleged 16 perpetrators is a widespread problem on school campuses, mentioning “due process” ten times
17 during the speech. She also claimed that “the system established by the prior administration” was 18 responsible for creating “victims of a lack of due process”.²⁷

19
20 21
22

²⁴ See Elisabeth DeVos, Sec'y of the U.S. Dep't of Educ., Remarks on Title IX Enforcement at 23 George Mason University (Sept. 7, 2017), https://www.ed.gov/news/speeches/secretary-devos-
24 prepared-remarks-title-ix-enforcement (“DeVos Remarks”).

25 ²⁵ See DeVos Remarks.

26 ²⁶ David Lisak, et al., False Allegations of Sexual Assault: An Analysis of Ten Years of Reported
27 Cases, 16(12) Violence Against Women 1318, 1330 (2010), https://icdv.idaho.gov/
28 conference/handouts/False-Allegations.pdf.

²⁷ DeVos Remarks.

1 96. Secretary DeVos also expressed doubt about the seriousness of sexual harassment claims,
2 saying, “[I]f everything is harassment, then nothing is.”²⁸ This statement, among other things,
3 minimizes the full range of sexual harassment and its impact on women and girls, including 4 deprivation of their access to education.

5 97. Secretary DeVos’s and Ms. Jackson’s statements are consistent with and reveal their 6 discriminatory belief, based on gender stereotypes, that many girls and women who report sexual 7 harassment misunderstood a harmless romantic advance and that those who report sexual 8 violence often are either lying or have regret about a consensual sexual encounter.

9 98. Other politically appointed Department of Education officials have similar doubts about 10 the veracity of sexual harassment and violence claims. For example, Adam Kissel, Deputy 11 Assistant Secretary for Higher Education Programs, has criticized affirmative consent policies
12 adopted on college campuses through his Twitter accounting, stating in February 2017 that “The 13 new OCR [Office of Civil Rights, Department of Education] will start to fix this.” Mr. Kissel 14 has also criticized the “preponderance of evidence” standard because it will lead, in his view, to 15 “more guilty verdicts,” apparently referring to campus findings of responsibility. He has also 16 criticized antidiscrimination policies preventing sexual harassment.

17 99. This discriminatory mindset has not only motivated decisionmakers at the Department, it 18 flows from the top of the Executive Branch. President Trump’s actions and statements reveal his 19 discriminatory and stereotyped views of women, and particularly women’s veracity regarding 20 claims of sexual harassment, including violence. For example, during his campaign for President,
21 Donald Trump called women who have made accusations of sexual harassment and assault
22 against him “phony accusers” who have made such reports to get “some free fame.” He has 23
24
25
26

27 ²⁸ DeVos Remarks.

1 called sexual harassment reports against him by women “a total setup” and the women who
2 made those reports, “horrible.”²⁹

3 100. Mr. Trump has bragged about sexually assaulting women on audiotape, but continues to 4 deny the experiences of women and girls who have experienced sexual assault. He asserted that 5 “every woman lied when they came forward...” regarding alleged sexual harassment by him, and 6 that all of the women “liars will be sued after the election is over.”³⁰

7
8 101. This discriminatory and stereotyped view of women and girls has become formal White
9 House policy, as the White House has asserted in an official statement that at least 16 women
10 who had accused the President of sexual harassment were lying.³¹

11 102. The Administration’s disbelief of women and girls and disregard for gender-based 12 violence is also evident from the employment of multiple White House staff members who have 13 been accused of abusing their female partners. It has been widely reported that now-former 14 White House staff secretary Rob Porter was elevated within the White House despite law
15 enforcement investigations concerning multiple reports of his abuse of women.³² After the 16 reports of Mr. Porter’s abuse were made public, President Trump has defended Mr. Porter, and 17
18

19 ²⁹ Ryan T. Beckwith, Read Donald Trump’s Speech Attacking His Accusers, TIME, Oct. 14, 20 2016, <http://time.com/4532181/donald-trump-north-carolina-accusers-speech-transcript/>.

21 ³⁰ Ben Jacobs, Trump Uses Gettysburg Address to Threaten to Sue Sex Assault Accusers, The 22 Guardian, Oct. 22, 2016, https://www.theguardian.com/us-news/2016/oct/22/donald-trump-gettysburg-contract-with-america-sue-accusers-hillary-clinton.

23 ³¹ John Wagner, All of the Women Who Have Accused Trump of Sexual Harassment Are Lying,
24 the White House Says, Wash. Post, Oct. 27, 2017, https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/post-politics/wp/2017/10/27/all-of-the-women-who-have-accused-trump-of-sexual-harassment-are-lying-the-white-house-says/?utm_term=.79b67a7a3a2b.

25 ³² Mr. Porter’s reported abuse of women is well documented; in 2010, a court issued a protective 26 order against him, finding “reasonable grounds” to believe that Mr. Porter committed domestic 27 abuse towards his wife at the time, Jennifer Willoughby, and “probable danger” of the abuse
28 occurring. Reports and evidence concerning Mr. Porter’s abuse of women are among the things that prevented Mr. Porter from obtaining a permanent security clearance.

1 White House Chief of Staff John Kelly stated that Mr. Porter is a man of “integrity.” Mr.
2 Porter’s resignation was followed by the resignation of another senior White House official,
3 David Sorensen, who also has been accused of gender-based violence.

4 103. Following these resignations, Mr. Trump issued a statement in the form of a
5 tweet: “Peoples [sic] lives are being shattered and destroyed by a mere allegation,” he wrote.
6 “There is no recovery for someone falsely accused—life and career are gone. Is there no
7 such thing any longer as Due Process?”³³

8 104. The Trump Administration’s animus towards women gives license to and encourages 9 Executive branch decisionmakers who share the same discriminatory views to perpetuate those 10 views in their work.
11

12 2017 Title IX Policy

13
14 105. On September 22, 2017, the Department issued a new Dear Colleague Letter (“2017 Dear
15 Colleague Letter”), rescinding the 2011 Dear Colleague Letter and 2014 Q&A.³⁴ The 2017 Dear
16 Colleague Letter also provides new information about how the Department will assess an 17 educational institution’s compliance with Title IX through a set of Questions and Answers.³⁵
18 Together, these documents set forth the Department’s revised Title IX policy (“2017 Title IX 19 policy”).
20

21 106. The 2017 Title IX policy departs dramatically from the 2011 and 2014 guidance
22 documents. The 2017 Title IX policy does not simply rescind the 2011 Dear Colleague Letter
23

24
25 ³³ Donald Trump (@realDonaldTrump), Twitter (Feb. 10, 2018), <https://twitter.com/realDonaldTrump/status/962348831789797381>.

26 ³⁴ See 2017 Dear Colleague Letter.

27 ³⁵ See 2017 Q&A.

1 and 2014 Q&A. Instead, it affirmatively contradicts Department policies that the 2017 Title IX
2 policy supposedly kept in effect, including the 2001 Guidance.

3 107. The 2017 Title IX policy, among other changes from existing law, imposes the following
4 requirements on schools that weaken protections for sexual harassment survivors:
5

6 • prohibits educational institutions from issuing interim measures that minimize the 7 burden on complainants to modify their work and class schedules or housing assignments,
8 thereby increasing the risk that survivors of sexual harassment are isolated from their support
9 networks in the aftermath of their experience, see 2017 Q&A at 3; 10

11 • requires educational institutions issuing interim measures to provide such 12 measures to both parties thereby placing the burden on the complainant of sexual harassment to 13 modify their access to education, and in turn increasing the risk that survivors of sexual 14 harassment are isolated from their support networks in the aftermath of their experience and 15 impeded in their ongoing access to educational benefits and opportunities, see id.;
16

17 • requires educational institutions to consider the impact on a perpetrator's access 18 to education, even after finding the individual responsible for sexual harassment or violence, in 19 reaching a decision on sanctions, id. at 6;

20 • eliminates the requirement that educational institutions consider the effect of off-21 campus conduct that does not involve a program or activity of the institution in determining 22 whether there is a hostile environment, id. at 1, n. 3.

23 • eliminates the requirement that educational institutions provide appellate rights to 24 both parties, if they are provided at all, and instead permits institutions to provide appellate rights
25 only to the alleged perpetrator, id. at 6-7;
26
27
28

1 • permits educational institutions not to provide interim measures to protect victims
2 of sexual harassment, including sexual violence from further harassment or violence during the 3 investigation into their complaint, see at 2-3;

4 • does not require educational institutions to timely resolve reports of sexual 5 harassment, including sexual violence, id. at 3;

6 • permits educational institutions to resolve claims of sexual assault through 7 mediation if both parties consent, notwithstanding, among other concerns, the likelihood that 8 mediation may retraumatize the victim, see id. at 4;

9 • permits educational institutions to use the “clear and convincing evidence” burden
10 of proof in adjudicating claims of sexual harassment, including sexual violence, rather than the 11 equitable standard of “preponderance of evidence,” id. at 5;

12 • eliminates the caution against educational institutions relying on criminal
13 investigations as a substitute for their own independent investigations and determinations
14 regarding complaints of sexual harassment, including sexual violence, cf. 2014 Q&A at 27;

15 • eliminates the prohibition on permitting an alleged perpetrator to question a 16 complainant’s sexual history with individuals other than the alleged perpetrator, cf. id. at 31;

17 • eliminates the prohibition on educational institutions treating a current or previous 18 consensual dating or sexual relationship between parties as implying consent or precluding a 19 filing of sexual violence, cf. id. at 31;

20 • fails to provide instructions on how to respond when a complainant requests 21 confidentiality or requests that no investigation or disciplinary action be pursued, cf. id. at 18-22;

22 and
23
24
25
26
27
28

1 • eliminates the strong discouragement to educational institutions from permitting
2 alleged perpetrators to directly cross-examine complainants to avoid the perpetuation of a hostile
3 environment, cf. id.
4

5 108. The 2017 Title IX policy definitively changes expectations for recipient institutions,
6 including the expectations outlined in the longstanding 2001 Guidance, which (unlike the 2017
7 Title IX policy) was the product of notice and comment procedures and remains in effect. For 8 example, the 2001 Guidance stated that in “alleged sexual violence, mediation will not be 9 appropriate even on a voluntary basis,” 2001 Guidance at 21, while the 2017 Title IX policy
10 permits explicitly mediation in all cases where the parties consent. 2017 Q&A at 4.
11

12 109. The 2017 Title IX policy also sets forth expectations and mandates on educational 13 institutions that are inconsistent with the statutory text of Title IX and its implementing 14 regulations, including, but not limited to, the following: providing for one-sided appellate rights 15 favoring the accused; permitting schools to adopt a higher burden of proof—clear and 16 convincing evidence—for adjudicating complaints of sexual harassment, including sexual 17 violence; considering the impact that particular sanctions would have on a perpetrator’s access to 18 education after being found responsible for sexual harassment, including sexual violence, under 19 Title IX; and departing from prior policy requiring interim measures be issued to promptly 20 remedy the hostile environment for the complainant of sexual harassment.
21

22 110. Ironically, Defendants issued the 2017 Title IX policy and rescinded the 2011 and 2014
23 guidance documents without any opportunity for public notice and comment on the new policy
24
25
26
27
28

1 despite stating that the “era of rule by letter is over.”³⁶ The Department stated that it would “craft
2 a new Title IX regulation” after a period of notice and comment.³⁷ Yet, in the five months that
3 have passed, the Department has not done so.

4 111. In promulgating the 2017 Title IX policy, Defendants deviated from normal
5 administrative processes and failed to provide reasoned justifications for the abrupt reversal in 6 policy—and frequently failed to acknowledge the reversal in policy.

7 112. The 2017 Title IX policy also relies on errors of fact and law. Among these, the 2017
8 Dear Colleague letter makes several claims about the effects of the rescinded guidance, stating,
9 for example, that it had “led to the deprivation of rights for many students—both the accused
10 students denied fair process and victims denied an adequate resolution of their complaints.” 2017
11 Dear Colleague Letter at 1-2. On the contrary, the prior policy did not require schools to limit
12 due process or basic fairness protections for alleged perpetrators. While there are anecdotes of 13 schools making errors in providing these procedural protections, such errors were neither 14 required by, nor the result of, the 2011 and 2014 guidance documents.

15 113. The 2011 and 2014 guidance documents clarified the requirements that Title IX imposes
16 on educational institutions to respond to complaints of sexual harassment and the protections it
17 requires for complainants. As such, they empowered students to make complaints of sexual 18 harassment, including sexual violence through campus complaint processes. The 2017 Title IX
19 policy does not acknowledge or otherwise account for the reliance interests that students, or 20 organizations that work with students, have in these protections. A student who filed a complaint
21 regarding sexual violence before the issuance of the 2017 Title IX policy would have been 22

23
24
25 ³⁶ Press Release, U.S. Dep’t of Educ., Dep’t of Educ. Issues New Interim Guidance on Campus
26 Sexual Misconduct, (Sept. 22, 2017), <https://www.ed.gov/news/press-releases/department-education-issues-new-interim-guidance-campus-sexual-misconduct>.

27 ³⁷ Id.

1 assured that her educational institution should resolve the investigation within about sixty days,
2 and among other protections, she would not be cross-examined by the person who allegedly 3 assaulted her. For those students whose complaints were pending in the fall of 2017, no such 4 assurances remain.

5
6 114. Furthermore, the 2017 Title IX policy's retrenchment on Title IX protections for victims
7 of sexual harassment, including sexual violence, in educational institutions is motivated by 8 stereotypical assumptions and overbroad generalizations about girls and women. Specifically,
9 decisionmakers at the Department hold the discriminatory views, as evidenced by Secretary
10 DeVos's and Ms. Jackson's statements, that (1) many girls and women who report sexual 11 harassment, including sexual violence, have misunderstood a harmless romantic advance and (2)
12 most girls and women who report sexual violence either are lying or have regret about a 13 consensual sexual encounter.
14

15 The Devastating Effects of the Department's 2017 Title IX Policy

16
17 115. The 2017 Title IX policy curtails important protections against sexual harassment. This 18 rollback has had devastating effects on students' equal access to educational opportunity, which 19 is all too often thwarted on the basis of their sex.

20 116. Following the issuance of the 2017 Title IX policy, schools have modified and/or stated
21 their intention to modify their practices. For example, in the weeks following the issuance of the 22 2017 Title IX policy, the South Dakota Board of Regents proposed "emergency revisions" to its 23 Title IX policy that "were required to comply with the Interim Guidance [i.e., 2017 Title IX
24 policy] issued on September 22, 2017."³⁸ The Board identified "revisions ... to comply with the 25

26
27 ³⁸ South Dakota Board of Regents, Minutes of the Meeting, Oct. 3-5, 2017, at 28 20, https://www.sdbor.edu/the-board/minutes/Documents/BOR_Minutes_102017.pdf

1 requirements contained in the Interim Guidance.”³⁹ It ultimately made a host of changes to its
2 policy to “align with” and “follow[]” the Interim Guidance.⁴⁰ The changes made by South
3 Dakota Board of Regents include, among others, modifications to its policy on interim measures,
4 sanctions, and mediation to “explicitly incorporate language contained in the interim
5 guidance.”⁴¹ As another example, following issuance of the 2017 Title IX policy and after the 6 Department closed an investigation into the handling of campus sexual violence at the University
7 of Houston, the university’s spokesman stated that, in light of the current guidance, the 8 university may make some changes to how it adjudicates sexual misconduct violations to “better 9 align with the [Department of Education’s] expectations to how we ensure due process.”⁴² In 10 addition, the University of Michigan has changed its Title IX policy to adopt the option of 11 mediation between an accused student and a survivor in cases of sexual assault. This new 12
13 14
15
16

17 ³⁹ South Dakota Board of Regents, Title IX Interim Guidance, Oct. 3-5, 2017, at 1,
18 https://www.sdbor.edu/the-
19 board/agendaitems/2014AgendaItems/2017%20Agenda%20Items/October0317/5_O_BOR1017.
20 pdf.

21 ⁴⁰ South Dakota Board of Regents, Minutes of the Meeting, Dec. 5-7, 2017, at 30,
22 https://www.sdbor.edu/the-board/minutes/Documents/BOR_Minutes_1217_DRAFT.pdf

23 ⁴¹ South Dakota Board of Regents, Title IX Interim Guidance, Revisions to Board Policies, Dec.
24 5-7, 2017, at 1, https://www.sdbor.edu/the-
25 board/agendaitems/2014AgendaItems/2017%20Agenda%20Items/December17/7_E_BOR1217-
26 REVISED.pdf; see also Danielle Ferguson, South Dakota Board of Regents Passes Interim Title
27 IX Sexual Assault Guidelines, Argus Leader, Dec. 7, 2017, http://www.argusleader.com/
28 story/news/2017/12/07/regents-pass-interim-title-ix-sexual-assault-guidelines/926445001/ (South Dakota State University vice president of student affairs stating that some of the changes were “substantive” but claiming that “most aren’t”).

⁴² Lindsay Ellis, Feds Close Title IX Investigation Into University of Houston, Chron, Oct. 4,
2017, http://www.chron.com/local/education/campus-chronicles/article/Feds-close-Title-IX-
investigation-into-University-12253555.php.

1 University of Michigan policy resulted from the Title IX policy change.⁴³ Other universities are 2 following suit either in policy and/or in practice by recommending mediation in cases of sexual 3 assault.

4 117. Following the issuance of the 2017 Title IX policy, universities have also changed their 5 policies in such a way that could delay resolution of reports of sexual misconduct, including 6 sexual assault.⁴⁴

7
8 118. Following the issuance of the 2017 Title IX policy, the Department has begun to modify
9 and limit its ongoing investigations and analysis of University responses to reports of sexual 10 misconduct, including sexual violence, to conform to the new Title IX policy.

11 119. Following the issuance of the 2017 Title IX policy, numerous individuals who have been 12 the subject of sexual violence or harassment have expressed a hesitance or unwillingness to 13 report their incidents to their school authorities, citing the Department's 2017 Title IX policy as 14 the reason for their hesitation or unwillingness.
15
16
17

18 ⁴³Jeremy Bauer-Wolf, Mediating Sexual Assault, Inside Higher Ed, Feb. 20, 19 2018, [https://www.insidehighered.com/news/2018/02/20/university-michigan-will-now-allow-
20 mediation-some-sexual-assault-cases](https://www.insidehighered.com/news/2018/02/20/university-michigan-will-now-allow-mediation-some-sexual-assault-cases); Rick Fitzgerald, *U-M Revises Student Sexual and Gender-
21 Based Misconduct Policy*, The Univ. Record, Feb. 1, 2018, [https://record.umich.edu/articles/u-23 m-revises-student-sexual-gender-based-misconduct-policy](https://record.umich.edu/articles/u-
22 m-revises-student-sexual-gender-based-misconduct-policy) (University of Michigan Public 24 Affairs Office explains that “[t]he change [regarding mediation] also reflects the most recent 25 guidance from the U.S. Department of Education's Office for Civil Rights.”).

26 ⁴⁴ Press Release, Grand Valley State Univ., Update on the Impact of Interim Q&A Related to 27 Title IX (Oct. 2, 2017), [https://www.gvsu.edu/inclusion/module-news-view.htm?storyId=B4C32E26-0CC1-44BC-CCF964C4D07C10C3&siteModuleId=6D5DCE61-CC95-4B12-A9C94F3632A6F3DD](https://www.gvsu.edu/inclusion/module-news-view.htm?storyId=B4C32E26-0CC1-44BC-CCF964C4D07C10C3&siteModuleId=6D5DCE61-28 CC95-4B12-A9C94F3632A6F3DD) (Grand Valley State University announcing it will remove its 60-day time frame for investigations.); Kara Coleman, Auburn University Re-Evaluating Title IX Policies and Procedures, Feb. 9, 2018, [www.oanow.com/news/auburnuniversity/auburn-university-re-evaluating-title-ix-policies-and-procedures/article_16b90e14-ecf7-507c-a390-85c0ad88e538.html](http://www.oanow.com/news/auburnuniversity/auburn-university-re-evaluating-title-ix-policies-and-procedures/article_16b90e14-ecf7-507c-a390-
85c0ad88e538.html) (Auburn University removed its 60-day time frame sometime “before Christmas” and now allows for “reasonable time,” which can be “three or four months.”).

1 120. These devastating consequences have overwhelmingly and disproportionately harmed
2 women and girls, among other populations that are disproportionately likely to be targeted for 3 sexual harassment and violence.

4 121. As outlined more fully in paragraphs 10-34, the consequences of the Department's 2017
5 Title IX policy have harmed and continue to harm Plaintiffs. Indeed, Plaintiffs are organizations
6 that assist and counsel survivors of sexual harassment, including sexual violence. As a result of 7 the chilling effect that the Department's change in policy has had and continues to have on 8 reporting sexual assault and other forms of sexual harassment, Plaintiffs are unable to meet their 9 missions of serving survivors of sexual violence and other forms of sexual harassment. Further,
10 Plaintiffs have had to expend resources over and above normal levels to combat underreporting
11 that has resulted from the Department's change in policy, causing a diversion of resources away
12 from their other core programmatic activities.

13 122. The effects of the 2017 Title IX policy have also required Plaintiffs to expend resources
14 over and above their normal levels to combat confusion among survivors and educational 15 institutions and to educate both on the requirements of Title IX's antidiscrimination provisions.
16 These resource expenditures have taken away from Plaintiffs' other core programmatic activities, 17 causing a diversion of resources.
18
19 20 21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

Claims for Relief

Count One

(Violation of the Administrative Procedure Act, 5 U.S.C. § 706)

1
2
3
4 123. Plaintiffs incorporate by reference the foregoing paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

5
6 124. The Administrative Procedure Act (“APA”) empowers this Court to set aside agency
7 action that is arbitrary, capricious, or contrary to law. It also requires an agency to provide a
8 sufficient explanation for its actions and to set aside actions and empowers this Court to set aside
9 actions that were undertaken without observance of procedure required by law.

10 125. The 2017 Title IX policy is the Department’s current policy for interpreting and 11 enforcing Title IX; it contains expectations and mandates for recipients that represents a shift
12 away from prior policy. Although labeled as interim, the 2017 Title IX policy is final agency
13 action for the purposes of the APA because it represents a conclusive shift in Department policy
14 that governs the enforcement and interpretation of Title IX and it has no definite termination 15 date.
16

17 126. By issuing the 2017 Title IX policy, the Defendants have adopted a policy that is 18 arbitrary, capricious, and contrary to law.

19 127. Among other particulars, the 2017 Title IX policy arbitrarily and without reasoned
20 explanation eliminates protections designed to prevent a discriminatory educational environment.
21 It does so, for example, by permitting the use of mediation to resolve claims of sexual assault,
22 which is not only arbitrary and unexplained, but also directly contradicts the Department’s 2001
23 Guidance. It also fails to consider the reliance interests that students have in the continuation of 24 those protections.
25
26
27
28

1 128. In addition, the 2017 Title IX policy fails to articulate an adequate reason for, or in some
2 cases even acknowledge, its departure from prior guidance documents and other Department
3 interpretations of Title IX and its implementing regulations, including the 2014 Q&A, 2011 Dear
4 Colleague Letter, and 2001 Guidance.

5 129. Defendants' proffered explanation for issuing the 2017 Title IX policy is based upon 6 mistakes of fact and law.

7 130. Defendants also acted in an arbitrary and capricious manner by implementing their 2017
8 Title IX policy without following the procedures required by law.

9 131. As a result of Defendants' unlawful actions, Plaintiffs have been harmed and their 10 missions frustrated, as outlined more fully in paragraphs 10-34 above.

11
12 13 Count Two
14 (Ultra Vires Action)

15 132. Plaintiffs incorporate by reference the foregoing paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

16 133. This Court has the power to set aside actions by the Executive Branch that are ultra vires
17 (i.e., without legal authority).

18 134. In adopting the 2017 Title IX policy and permitting recipients of federal funding to adopt
19 policies that disadvantage victims of sexual harassment, including sexual violence, and benefit
20 the alleged perpetrators, such as by permitting educational institutions to provide one-sided
21 appellate rights, and in considering factors unrelated to Title IX's mandate in doing so,
22 Defendants have acted in excess of their legal authority.
23
24
25
26
27
28

Count Three
(Violation of the Equal Protection Guarantee of the Fifth Amendment)

1
2
3 135. Plaintiffs incorporate by reference the foregoing paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

4 136. The Due Process Clause of the Fifth Amendment to the United States Constitution
5 forbids the federal government from denying equal protection of the laws, including by 6 discriminating on the basis of sex.

7 137. In issuing the 2017 Title IX policy, Defendants were motivated, at least in part, by their 8 discriminatory—and baseless—gender stereotype that many women and girls lack credibility
9 with regard to sexual harassment. Such stereotype includes the perception that women and girls 10 who report sexual harassment misunderstood a harmless romantic advance and that those who 11 report sexual violence often are either lying or have regret about a consensual sexual encounter.

12 138. The statements and actions of Secretary DeVos and Ms. Jackson, as well as the 13 circumstances under which the 2017 Title IX policy change was issued, further demonstrate that 14 Defendants issued the 2017 Title IX policy knowing it would have a disparate impact on women, 15 who constitute the overwhelming majority of sexual harassment and assault survivors, by 16 reducing federal protections for victims of sexual harassment and assault. They took this action
17 not despite this impact on women, but because of it.

18 139. Defendants, in issuing the 2017 Title IX policy based on gender stereotyped assumptions, 19 as evidenced by contemporary statements, departing from normal agency processes, acting with 20 the knowledge that the policy would disproportionately impact female students, and motivated
21 by that disproportionate impact, discriminated on the basis of sex in violation of the Due Process
22 Clause of the Fifth Amendment.

23 140. As a result of Defendants' unlawful actions, Plaintiffs have been harmed and their 24 missions frustrated, as outlined more fully in paragraphs 10-34 above.
25
26
27
28

1 WHEREFORE, Plaintiffs pray that this Court:

- 2 1. Declare the Dear Colleague Letter and the Q&A issued in September 2017 unlawful;
- 3 2. Issue an injunction ordering Defendants to vacate the Dear Colleague Letter and the
- 4 Q&A issued in September 2017;
- 5 3. Award Plaintiffs costs, attorneys' fees, and other disbursements for this action; and
- 6 4. Grant any other relief this Court deems appropriate.
- 7

8 DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL.

9 Respectfully submitted,

Date: February 21, 2018

10 /s/ Alice Abrokwa

11 Alice Y. Abrokwa*

12 Leecia Welch (CA Bar No. 208741)

National Center for Youth Law

405 14th Street, 15th Floor

Oakland, CA 94612, and

14 1313 L Street, NW, Suite 130

Washington, DC 20005

15 Ph: (510) 835-8098

Fax: (510) 835-8099

16 Emails: lwelch@youthlaw.org, aabrokwa@youthlaw.org

17 Jennifer A. Reisch (CA Bar No. 223671)

Equal Rights Advocates

1170 Market Street, Suite 700

San Francisco, CA 94102

18 Ph: (415) 896-0672

19 Fax: (415) 231-0011

20 Email: jreish@equalrightsadvocates.org

21

22 Javier M. Guzman*

Skye L. Perryman*

23 Robin Thurston*

Karianne Jones*

24 Democracy Forward Foundation

1333 H St. NW

Washington, DC 20005

25 Ph: (202) 448-9090

26 Fax: (202) 701-1775

1 Emails: jguzman@democracyforward.org, sperryman@democracyforward.org,
2 rthurston@democracyforward.org, kjones@democracyforward.org

3 Emily Martin*

4 Neena Chaudhry*

5 Sunu Chandy*

6 Alexandra Brodsky*

7 National Women's Law Center

8 11 Dupont Circle, NW, Suite 800

9 Washington, DC 20036

10 Ph: (202) 588-5180

11 Fax: (202) 588-5185

12 Emails: emartin@nwlc.org, nchaudhry@nwlc.org, etang@nwlc.org, schandy@nwlc.org,
13 abrodsky@nwlc.org

14 pro hac vice motions filed or forthcoming*

15 Counsel for Plaintiffs